ISSUE 6

As vets, we believe in offering a complete health care service. It is our job to make pets better when they are unwell, but also to help them stay healthy in the first place.

Prevention is better than cure

Obviously not every disease can be avoided, but by keeping out preventative health care up to date, we can keep our pets healthy for as long as possible. Preventative health care includes vaccinations and parasite (flea and worm) treatment.

It also includes dental care, exercise, diet... There are so many things to consider when keeping a pet healthy and we are always happy to give advice, whether about pet behaviour, or how to brush their teeth, or what diet to feed. The world of pet food can feel overwhelming with so many options, and we get many questions from people getting conflicting advice from friends, family, breeders and the internet.

To keep things simple, we are now offering a new range of vet only pet food for dogs and cats: SPECIFIC. This is a tried and tested pet food that offers scientifically balanced nutrition in a simple and cost-effective form. We have tried it on our pets and they love it: we hope your pets will love it too! (In the unlikely event they do not, we offer a 100% money back guarantee!)

See more about SPECIFIC later in the newsletter.

So, remember, we are here to keep your pets in tip top condition – any questions or worries about anything related to your pet, please give us a call

Nuws in brief...

Here's a brief roundup of what's been happening at NuVet:

 Our wonderful head nurse Jo and her husband Steve welcomed baby Edwin to the world on 19th June. Congratulations! We know Jo will be the world's best mum if she looks after Edwin half as well as she looks after us!

 Several of our nurses are studying towards external qualifications.

- Becky has been accepted onto the CEPT Advanced Certificate in Veterinary Physiotherapy in September
- Jenni is working towards her British Small Animal Veterinary Association Merit Award in Medical Nursing
- Nikitia has recently gained a place on the prestigious Diploma in Advanced Veterinary Nursing.

 We are very sad to say goodbye to our vet Maddie and our receptionist Jess. Jess is now working for the charity SENSE and Maddie is taking a break from clinical practice. We wish them both luck for the future.

 We are trialling an online appointment booking system (as well as our current system). Please have a look on our website to try it out

 We are now pleased to offer a vaccines for life scheme – see later in this letter for more details

SPECIFIC

Diet

At NuVet we are constantly looking for ways to possibly improve your pet's care, and for this reason we are delighted to bring you news of a superb quality food range for dogs and cats that is now available from us.

We have made this change based on cost-effectiveness, as well as the exciting, scientific advances that the new range represents.

We will continue to offer all previous diets, so if your pet is settled on another food, this will not be disrupted.

Winter Weight Worries?

Weigh in Wednesdays

As the nights draw in, it is easy to do a little less exercise, eat a little more food and let the pounds creep on. It is the same for our pets!

Obesity is a huge problem in pets. Today, nearly half the pets seen by vets are overweight. Carrying extra weight can cause serious health and welfare problems, and make existing problems worse. This can reduce the length and quality of a pet's life by up to 2 years.

Some serious medical conditions associated with obesity are:

- ❄️ Diabetes
- ❄️ Heart disease
- ❄️ Respiratory distress
- ❄️ High blood pressure
- ❄️ Cancers
- ❄️ Arthritis

The good news is that this is a problem we can help you fix. We can help keep your pet happy and healthy.

Please contact the surgery for your FREE Weigh-In Wednesday nurse consultation.
